VOL. XI No. 2

Annual Dues: $6.00 per family

December 1975

(Send to Gary Andrus, 750 Falls Dr., Idaho Falls, Ida.)

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Dear Cousins:

As I left for Salt Lake on Oct. 3rd for our semi-annual meeting of the Board of Directors, I was having second thoughts about going. Work had piled up, and I would have liked to have been out in the mountains getting wood or just enjoying the beauties of nature. However, I knew where I was supposed to be and I knew there would be some faithful family members at the meeting regardless of how far they had to travel or other inconveniences. I looked forward to meeting Afton Jolley and her father Charles from Burley, Thomas from Idaho Falls, Hyrum from Provo, and of course David and Lavern, Jim Pack, Rodney, and our gracious hosts, Dean and his good wife Lenore. I was not disappointed. The enthusiasm of these good people made me feel well paid for my efforts.

As I listened to the various ones make their reports on the progress they were having, I was most grateful to belong to such a fine family.

There were 808 Recorders sent out last issue, and we expect more this time. If you have kin who are not receiving the Recorder, please send their names and addresses to LaVern and David Diehl.

The sad part was that there were only 200 who had sent in their six dollars for the Recorder.

There were also several wife-line families who failed to hold a reunion. I plead with the presidents to try and get their families together. For more de-tails you can read the minutes in the Recorder.

I feel humble as I think of the many calls that came to Grandpa Milo and his faithfulness in answering each one with his services. His son James, my grandfather, whom we are honoring in this Recorder, also answered many calls to service. The trials of this Dixie Mission were great, but he was up to the task and stayed and completed his call. A third of those called gave up and returned north..

We have so much to be thankful for. May we do our best to keep up with our tasks. This is all part of the Gospel. May we lengthen our strides and run with our beloved President Kimball, doing our part to build up the kingdom.

Yours truly;

James A. Andrus, President Milo Andrus Family Organization

EXECUTIVE BOARD MINUTES

The Executive Board meeting of the Milo Andrus Sr. Family Organization was held on Saturday, Oct. 4, 1975 at 1:00 P. M. at the home of Dean W. Andrus, 4312 Parkview Drive, Salt Lake City. Present were James Andrus, president: Hyrum Andrus, James Pack, and Dean Andrus. David & LaVerne Diehl were also in attendance, Allyn Andrus and Secretary Beth Anderson. had asked to be excused. The opening prayer was to be David Diehl. LaVerne Diehl was asked to take the minutes.

REUNIONS - President Andrus reviewed the Milo Andrus Sr. reunions held since 1969. The possibility of holding reunions in four geographical areas in the future was discussed. These areas would be St. George, Salt Lake Valley, Utah County and Snake River Valley. If the Canadian members can hold a reunion this might be worked in.

PAID MEMBERS - 214 members have paid their $6.00. It was decided to suggest placing the matter of members paying and/or delinquencies in the hands of the family line chairmen. It was felt a mailing list of over 800 cannot be supported by only 200 paying members.

RECORDER - Wife line chairmen should be continually sending in information and pictures on their lines. This information would be put in family files by Hyrum, who felt the organization should not be pot , shoting one line at a time, but rather should be covering the whole family. Hyrum said the Recorder will cost more in the future because additional pictures will be used.

IDENTIFICATION OF FAMILY LINES - Gary Andrus (in a letter read by Jim Andrus) said some people sending in dues are confused as to what lifeline they come from. Receipt of the Recorder should suffice as a receipt for dues.

REFUND OF MONEY TO WIFELINES FROM DUES - It was decided to hold this discussion until the general meeting.

Meeting was adjourned at 1:50 P.M.

GENERAL MEETING - ANDRUS ORGANIZATION

The general meeting of the Milo Andrus Sr. Family Organization was held Saturday Oct. 4, 1975 at 2:00 P.M. at the home of Dean W. Andrus, 4312 Parkview Dr., Salt Lake City. Present were Thomas Andrus, James Andrus, Dale Walker, Charles Andrus, Afton Jolley, Hyrum Andrus, James Pack and Dean Andrus. David and LaVerne Diehl were also in attendance. Allyn Andrus and Secretary Beth Anderson had previously asked to be excused. LaVerne Diehl was asked to take the minutes. Thomas Andrus conducted.

The minutes of the April 1975 meeting were read by LaVerne Diehl and were approved with the exception of one entry which Dale Walker will correct by a memo to be submitted later.

James Andrus reviewed Milo Andrus, Sr. reunions held since 1968. A motion by Hyrum Andrus, seconded by Afton Jolley was passed setting up four areas for holding the Milo Andrus Sr. reunion: Snake River Valley (Idaho), Utah Valley (Provo), Salt Lake Valley and St. George with the understanding that a reunion can be held in various communities within an area.

James Andrus moved, Dean Andrus seconded and motion passed designating the next reunion be held June 25 & 26, 1976 in the Salt Lake Valley area.

Hyrum moved, Jim Andrus seconded and motion passed that the chairman of the reunion be appointed by the Executive Cornmittee but not be a member of the Executive Committee. Jim Andrus was instructed to name one of the following three suggested persons as chairman of the 1976 reunion: Owen E. Andrus, Ione Andrus Pack or A. Marlin Andrus.

Hyrum suggested and the group agree that each person attending the reunion be well tagged so their place in the Andrus family is evident.

Afton Jolley moved, seconded by Dean and passed that for each Milo Andrus, Sr. reunion (every 2 years) the area holding the reunion be awarded $75.00 from the organization's general fund as a financial basis to get the reunion under way.

James Andrus moved, seconded by Dale Walker, that the area holding the reunion ask for a nominal contribution from those in attendance. Motion passed.

Beth Anderson is to be directed to send a copy of the minutes to each Board Member who attended this meeting. This should be done as soon after the meeting as possible.

Hyrum emphasized that family leaders should say, "What have I done for the family line these past six months." He said the inflow of information needs to be continued. The Board agreed with him that the Recorder should be published 4 times a year.

Family members should send in stories, pictures and genealogies. Pictures can include homesteads etc. Persons sending in pictures should be sure to write on the back the names of people or buildings on the pictures, and the dates if possible and always the name and address to whom the picture(s) should be returned. If a family member feels a picture is too valuable to mail, they could have a copy made of the picture, mail the copy and indicate that it need not be returned.

FINANCIAL REPORT - James Andrus pointed out that the organization cannot continue sending out over 800 Recorders when only 200 members pay.

Dale explained that the Internal Revenue Service needs an itemized financial statement before it will grant the family a tax exempt status. Gary Andrus, treasurer, will be notified to submit the financial information to Dale. LaVerne Diehl will contribute the information she has. Family chairman will be notified who is paying dues and will be urged to contact those who do not pay.

Dale and Jim Pack offered information on the possibility of using computer help in the mailing of the Recorder and the maintenance of membership rolls. Dale, Jim Pack, Afton Jolley and Mrs. Dean Andrus offered to help type labels for the next mailing of the Recorder.

GENEALOGY - The Dutch researcher is good but takes his own time. The program is slowly moving forward. The Colonial program (from Colonial times to 1800) should be completed by April 1976.

Dean Andrus and his wife were again thanked for their hospitality in hosting the meeting. The next meeting will be held Saturday, April 3, 1976 at 2:00 P. M. at the home of David and LaVerne Diehl at 2701 Milo Way in Salt Lake City (Holladay). Jim Pack closed the meeting with prayer.

ADDITION TO MINUTES (Board Meeting, April 5, 1975)

On page 2 of the last issue of the Recorder, the following should be added to the comments made by Dale Walker:

"Dale noted that there is a duplication of reunions for the descendants of Mary Jane Andrus this year, and every year under our present reunion schedules."

WIFE-LINE REUNIONS

Several, but not all, wife-line organizations held a reunion last summer. Hereafter it is hoped that a brief statement of each reunion will be sent to Hyrum L. Andrus for inclusion in the Recorder. The following information was submitted by Afton A. Jolley:

"The Margaret Boyce Wife-line Reunion was held in Burley, Idaho, August 30, 1975. There were 46 members in attendance, representing 4 of the 8 children. Represented were Ben, Joe, Hyrum, and Mansfield. Three family genealogists were selected: Maurene Parker, for Hyrum; Betty Miller and Elaine Gibbons, for Mansfield; and Betty Linscott and Lila Andrus, for Joe. A good time was had by all present."

LIFE SKETCH OF MARY JANE ANDRUS AND WILLIAM DORRIS HENDRICKS

Mary Jane was born on the 15th of November, 1833, at Florence, Huron, Ohio, to Milo Andrus and Abigail Jane Daley. She was their first child. By this time Milo and Abigail were converts of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints of less than a year. She married William Dorris Hendricks on the 12th of March 1851, in Salt Lake City. The location of the marriage was the Warm Springs Bath House, an early social center of the Saints that was constructed by her husband. They were married by Brigham Young. Their residence was the Bath House, until their removal to Richmond, Utah. W. D., as he was called, was the son of James Hendricks and Drusilla Dorris. He was born on the 6th of November, 1829, at Franklin, Simpson County, Kentucky. Prior to his marriage, W. D. had cared for his father, along with his mother, after his father was wounded during the persecutions in Missouri at the battle of Crooked River. While in Nauvoo, W. D. worked on the temple, hauling rock. After the exodus, he served in the Mormon Battalion, as a private in Company D.

Five months after his marriage to Mary Jane, W. D. married Alvira Lavona Smith. During this period many of Brigham Young's socials were held at their social center. This fact reflects the refinement and graciousness of Mary Jane, W. D., and Alvira. In 1860, W. D., Mary Jane, and Alvira, with their children, moved to Cache Valley, Utah, and assisted in the settlement of Richmond, where he became the town's first mayor in 1864. He served two terms. He engaged in stock raising, farming, milling, banking, and contracting. The following year, W. D. married a third wife, Almira Davenport on 10 Oct 1865.

In 1877, they were called to Lewiston (northwest of Richmond) to assist in the settlement of that community and W. D. was called to be the 1st Counsellor to Bishop William Hendricks Lewis.

In 1884, W. D. was called to be the President of the newly formed Oneida Stake, in southern Idaho. Mary Jane remained in Lewiston until a year later, when W. D. was forced to bring Alvira to Lewiston and bring Mary Jane to Idaho, because of the persecution against those who practiced plural marriage.

In 1887, W. D. was forced to leave his first three wives in Utah and depart to Mexico. He took with him his fourth wife that he had married in 1885, Christine Olsen. Later, his third wife joined him in Mexico. While there, he married Eleanor Anna Maybin, on 3 Dec 1897, who at this time had a daughter of a previous marriage. In 1889 he was released from the Presidency of the Oneida Stake, and Mary Jane returned to Richmond. After the manfesto was issued, W. D. was able to rejoin his family in Richmond where he served as Patriarch of the Benson Stake.

Mary Jane was the mother of eleven of W. D. 's forty-two (and one adopted) children.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH OF JAMES ANDRUS (written principally by his son, Alexander Burto Andrus)

Bishop James Andrus of St. George, Washington County, Utah, was born June 14, 1835, in Florence, Huron Co., Ohio, the son of Milo Andrus and Abigail Jane Daley. He was the oldest son of his father, who had 57 children. He was blessed as a child under the hands of Sidney Rigdon, his parents being already members of the Church. When about eight years of age, he was baptized and soon afterwards ordained to the office of Deacon. In the spring of 1846, he left Nauvoo, Ill., together with his parents, for the far west, en route for the mountains. Having proceeded as far as the Pawnee village, near Grand Island, the company with which he traveled received word from Pres. Brigham Young to go into winter quarters at or near that place; but, being under the direction of Bishop George Miller, the company, instead of obeying the council of Pres. Young, turned north, traveling as far as the Running Water, in the Ponca nation. Here they stayed for several months and then returned to Winter Quarters, settling temporarily above that place where they remained till the summer of 1847.

In the spring of 1848, when James was about thirteen years old, he started across the plains with his mother, one sister older than himself, two younger sisters and a younger brother, having two yoke of oxen and a yoke of cows at their disposal. His father, Milo Andrus, left his family on the prairie, having been called to go to England on a mission. James wrote, "We had all of our possessions for the family of six in one small wagon, and I took my part, although but a child, in all the guards of both camp and cattle. "

The family came to the valley with the Heber C. Kimball Company. They reached the Valley of the Great Salt Lake in the fall of 1848, and here they crudely constructed a log cabin. They often went hungry and sometimes they were cold.

James was a boy chum of Joseph F. Smith, who later became President of the Church.

When James was 21 years of age, he bought his time from his father, Milo. The winter of 1855-56 he spent in Washington Territory, as a trader among the Flat Head Indians. This is when he got his start of fine horses.

In March of 1857, he married Laura Altha Gibson, who thereafter bore him nine children. Immediately after, he, with Seymour B. Young, Phillip Margeto, David Wilkin, Charles Shumway, Father Atkin, Robert Gardner, David Brinton, and William Carter, was called to England as a missionary, crossing the plains from Salt Lake City to the Missouri River with handcarts, as was the custom of the time.

James married Manomas Lovina Gibson as a second wife, with whom he had eleven children. They were married in the Endowment House at Salt Lake City. Both wives of James were the daughters of George Washington Gibson and Mary Ann Sparks. They were southern people who joined the church in their native state, South Carolina, and crossed the plains with their large family. They came to Utah in Captain Brown's Company.

In the fall of 1861 James was called (together with Orson Pratt, Frank B. Wooley, and many others) to settle Southern Utah, where he passed through all the trials and privations incident to pioneer life in a barren desert country. But he was eminently successful in his labors of developing the wilderness and turning it into a fruitful garden spot.

In 1862 he filled a short mission to the Moquis Indians. In April 28, 1862, the Indians destroyed stations between Fort Bridger and North Platte, burned coaches, mail bags, killed drivers, and ran off with the stock. Because of this action, Adjutant General L. Thomas, of Washington, D.C., made a call to President Brigham Young for a company of cavalry to protect the mail routes, and James Andrus was called to serve under Captain Lot Smith.

In 1863, when volunteers were called from Utah's Sunny Dixie for drivers of teams to bring several emigrants across the plains, James went as an assistant to Captain Daniel D. McArthur and successfully brought a large company to Utah. The following year he made a similar trip east after merchandise, traveling with a mule team.

On the night of January 8, 1866, James W. Whitmore and Robert McIntyre were killed near Pipe Springs, Arizona, by Piute and Navajo Indians. Word came to St. George that there was trouble with Indians at Pipe Springs, and that Whitman and McIntyre were missing. When this word came, the people of St. George were gathered in the Meeting House for a dance. A call was made for men to be armed and equipped and to start at once for Pipe Springs.

The next morning the men were armed and mounted, but there were no shelter tents. Their equipment was primitive and inadequate, and their provisions were scanty. Some were mounted on mules, without saddles, and some even without coats. Their quilts served as saddles, cloaks, and bedding and in shirt sleeves they did a soldier's full duty on the trying campaign. This was in the dead of winter with 3 feet of snow on the ground and the mercury below zero. The officers of the expedition were:

Colonel D. D. McArthur
Lieutenant Colonel Augus M. Cannon
Major J. D. L. Pearce
Captain David Cannon
Captain James Andrus
Captain Samuel Cunningham

There were seventy-nine soldiers. After several days of scouting, James Andrus found two Indians who admitted that Whitmore and McIntyre were killed by Indians, and they said they would take them to the bodies.

Dividing into two companies, one under the leadership of Colonel McArthur and the other under Captain Andrus, they soon found the bodies.

Also at this time, a large number of horses and sheep were driven off by the Navajo's, and the personal effects were retained by the Piutes. It was the first depredation in Dixie Country in which white men lost their lives, but they were not the last victims of the long war which was waged by the Navajo's and the Piute's against the white settlers of Southern Utah.

The second expedition of which James was Captain was formed on February 21, 1866. They served until March 12, 1866, twenty days. The object of the expedition was to deliver Peter Shirts and family, and to protect the white settlers while they left Kane County. This time there was 29 men under his command.

At that time, there were no telegraph lines, and no railroads. The quickest way to transmit a message was by an expressman mounted on a good horse.

James received a message to hurriedly mobilize a small force and take up and follow the trail of some Indian marauders. This message came from Captain Copeland to James, at Virgin, Utah. Captain Freeman arrived with a detachment of men from Washington; and the two Captains joined forces, numbering about eighty men.

This force moved rapidly forward, hoping to cut off the retreat of the Navajo's toward their own country; by a forced march, nightfall found them camped on the Cedar Ridge, about eight miles west of Pipe Springs. About 4:00 a. m. the man on guard saw, away off across the plains, a light which he thought was a fire. He woke Captain James Andrus. The latter unhesitatingly declared that the light was reflected from a fire, and that there were Indians there. He could smell them.

Orders were immediately issued, and the men were soon mounted and moving noiselessly toward the light which shone in the darkness several miles away. A convenient wash or gully, made it possible for the Militia to approach to within one hundred and fifty yards of the unsuspecting Navajo's, who were busily occupied with their breakfast of broiled beef.

Dismounting his men, Captain James Andrus, to whom the direct command had been entreated by Colonel J. D. L. Pearce who was present, left a detail to hold the horses. With the remainder of his forces he attacked the camp. At the first fire the Navajo's scattered. But at the command of their Chief, they ran out, came together, and faced their assailants, notwithstanding the great odds arrayed against them. Slowly they retreated to the top of a neighboring ridge, where they made a stand, returning shot for shot.

Captain Andrus now ordered his men to remount, and take the position which the Indians were holding, by assault. Charging straight up the bluff, the Captain rode, leading his men. As he rushed up the slope toward the rocks, Ammon Tenney, who was at a different angle, saw and Indian on the crest of the ridge, one knee on the ground, his bow bent to the arrowhead, waiting for the Captain to appear. Frantically Tenney shouted, "Look out, Captain, that Indian will kill you."

Instantly Captain Andrus reigned his horse, a high-spirited animal named "Black Hawk," which threw up its head and received in its forehead the arrow intended for its rider. The arrow was so deeply imbedded in the skull of the horse that it could not be removed until the settlements were reached, when it was extracted with a pair of blacksmith's shoeing pincers.

The battle was soon over. The Indians were either killed or scattered; and when Captain Andrus called his men together, none was missing, notwithstanding the stubborn resistance of the enemy and many hair-breadth escapes.

James Andrus was elected Lieutenant Colonel of the 1st Regiment of Cavalry, on the 22nd day of February, 1868, and was commissioned by acting Governor Edwin Higgins, on the 15th day of April of the same year.

James spent 15 years in military service.

In November of 1871, Jacob Hamblin met with the Navajo Indians, principally Chief Defiance, and concluded a Treaty of Peace with them.

Chief Walker visited Captain Andrus at his home after the Treaty of Peace, and they became good friends. He told Captain Andrus that they had tried to kill him, realizing that he was the most successful one in defeating their purpose.

In 1867, James moved his family from Grafton to St. George, where he was to remain until his death.

In 1869, he made a trip from Los Angeles, California, to Helena, Montana with freight.

When the Pioneers came to Dixie they brought their livestock with them, such as milk cows, work horses, and what other animals they possessed. From the vast amount of public domain, it was easy to see that the livestock business could be made to be a great benefit to the people in this part of the state.

As the livestock increased, it was necessary to extend their grazing borders. They finally went out on top of Hurricane Fault, on the Antelope, and what was then known as the Canaan Ranch. It was later thought best to form a corporation, which was done by each one turning in his stock and receiving credit in the company. This company, the "Canaan Cooperative Livestock Company, " proved to be a great benefit to the people.

In 1871, James Andrus became the General Manager of the Canaan Cooperative Livestock Company, and he was a very good and capable man for the position. The business increased under his management. He was in charge of this company for twenty-five years.

From 1871 until the time of his death, he could be found each year in the saddle. No finer specimen of manhood ever sat upon a horse. Six feet one inch in height, and weighing in his prime 230 pounds, he was always riding on the finest horses that money and breeding could produce. Cow horses are not raised, but are "born, " just like cowboys. Many men worked at the cow business all their lives and never became efficient cow-hands. A good cowpuncher can ride a hackamore colt into a herd of cattle, and he will know at once whether the animal is a good cow horse. Such horses, owned and raised by James Andrus, were named "Bishop, " "Bollie, " and a score of others. names,

James Andrus was a trustworthy cowboy, a successful cattleman, merchant, and banker. He was a wise statesman and a true soldier. This man did his full part in the colonization of the west, and keeping pace with its development. He was at home at the old-time roundups, or at the new.

After James Andrus resigned from running the "Canaan Cooperative Livestock Association, " he engaged in the cattle business for himself and became the leading stockraiser in this section.

Later he became identified with the Wooley, Lund and Judd Mercantile Company. He later succeeded in buying this firm out, which he was still managing at the time of his death, known as James Andrus & Sons, St. George, Utah.

In political affairs he was active and interested. After the division of party lines when Utah joined the Union, he was elected State Representative to the first Legislature, November 5, 1895. He was a Democrat from Washington County. He served as County Commissioner for several terms, and he was chosen as the Presidential elector from Utah on the Democratic ticket in the election of 1912.

In 1857, James Andrus was ordained a Seventy by Joseph Young, and in 1895 he was ordained a High Priest by Francis M. Lyman and called to act as a High Councilor in the St. George Stake, which position he filled till 1896, when he was ordained a Bishop by Franklin D. Richards and set apart to preside over the St. George Ward. He discharged his duties faithfully in that office until he was honorably released. He was a member of the High Council at the time of his death.

James was especially interested in the farming, stockraising, and merchantile business enterprises that were started in the section. He was also interested in nearly every irrigation project or business enterprise which was started in this part of the country. His judgment was good, and he was respected by his business associates.

He was liberal with his means for public purposes, especially in the erection of school buildings. He was the father of the Woodwork Department of Dixie College. He was Vice President of the Bank of St. George, from its organization until the time of his death. He was also President of the Telephone Company for many years.

James died at his home in St. George, Utah, December 8, 1914, after leading a very successful life. His widow, Manomas G. Andrus, and fourteen children survived him. He had at this time forty-five grandchildren who survived him. He was the father of twenty-one children.

THE LIFE OF LAURA ALTHA GIBSON ANDRUS

Laura Altha Gibson was born in Monroe County, Missouri, on 27 June, 1837, the daughter of Mary Ann Sparks and George Washington Gibson. She was one of eleven children. The family joined the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in Mississippi, in 1845, and one year later they joined the John Brown Company and commenced their long journey to the Salt Lake Valley. This company became known in church history as the "Mississippi Saints." They had been instructed to meet Brigham Young and the body of the Saints at a designated place on the Platte River. But Brigham Young was detained, so the Mississippi Saints journeyed on to the Old Spanish Fort on the Arkansas River at Pueblo, Colorado, where they stayed during the winter of 1846-47. When the leader of the Mormon Battalion heard of the fifteen families staying at the fort, he ordered the women and children who accompanied the Battalion to be sent there. Later, their husbands and the sick and ailing soldiers were also sent to winter there. During that winter, 300 people inhabited the fort. Laura Altha was nine years old at that time, and she related many stories of the kindness and the help that was extended to the Saints by the Spanish people who occupied the fort. In the spring of 1847, the company continued their trek towards the Salt Lake Valley. They arrived there on 29 July 1847, just five days after the company led by Brigham Young. The Gibsons were almost destitute, but George W. was a carpenter by trade; and soon he built a log cabin for his family in Big Cottonwood, near Holladay.

On 11 March 1857, Laura Altha married James Andrus, and one month later she saw him set off on a mission to Europe. She accompanied him to the mouth of Emigration Canyon, then led his horse back to their home while he continued his journey through the mountains on foot. On the 30th of November of that year, Laura Altha alone welcomed the birth of their first child, Laura Jane, who came to be known always as "Tid."

In 1861 they were called, with other families, to colonize southern Utah. They settled in Grafton, Washington County. There they endured the trials and privations typical of pioneer life in those "up the river settlements."

They suffered the heat and the mosquitos, and the flash floods that in a matter of minutes would destroy dams and ditches and crops. Three more children were born in Grafton, giving them a family of five--"Tid" and James, Jr., having been born in Salt Lake. The new children were named Mary Lovina, Elizabeth Louella, and Elenora. Mary Lovina died at the age of 1-1/2 years.

In 1866, Brigham Young called them to St. George where James was to become one of the most noted leaders who dealt with the Indian uprisings of the area. Laura Altha was left alone constantly while he was out on these dangerous assignments. She gave birth to four more children: Edgar, who died in infancy, Milo Washington, Gideon Lafayette, and Thanizin Millennium. Her husband became a leader in the community, in religious, political and business affairs. She never wavered in her support of him, and she was always at his side in every thing he did. For many years she was counselor in the St. George Relief Society, and on Dec. 21, 1902, when two wards were formed in St. George, she became the first President of the St. George West Ward Relief Society. She held this position until her death on 4 July 1906. She was a dedicated, faithful worker among her sisters, and on the day of her funeral they showed their respects for her as they gathered, joined by the sisters of the East Ward, at the family residence each bearing a beautiful bouquet of flowers and accompanying the remains to the tabernacle.

Note by granddaughter Kay Sullivan:

I think that we often receive our greatest insight to a person's character through small and seemingly unimportant items. I have in my possession a small notebook which belonged to my grandmother, Laura Altha Andrus. On the outside she has written, "Tithing Pass Book of Laura Andrus." In this book, she carefully recorded her tithing payments for the years of 1900 to 1905. All payments were in butter, eggs, squash, beets, chickens, etc. I treasure this little book written in her own beautiful script. To me it represents a testimony of faith. How I wish I could have known her.

A BRIEF HISTORY OF THE LIFE OF MANOMAS LOVINA GIBSON ANDRUS

Manomas Lovina Gibson was born in Monroe County, Mississippi, March 10, 1842. Her father was George Washington Gibson, and her mother was Mary Ann Sparks. They were parents of eleven children, Manomas being the tenth child. When she was about four years of age, her parents with others of the family were converted to the truths of the Gospel and started on the long journey to Utah.

When the company arrived at Pueblo, in 1846, Manoma's father took sick with Mountain Fever (typhoid) and it became necessary for them to spend the winter there. At that time, Pueblo was only a small trading post with a few buildings, and the women of the Gibson family were practically the only women in the settlement that winter.

The Spanish women were very good to this family and with their sick father. The family depended upon the kindness of these people for food. Manomas remembers having these women take her and her baby brother to their homes and give them dinner . And such good dinners they were too.

The Indians were troublesome, though, as they were to people in all settlements. She could plainly remember seeing some of them sitting on the floor as her mother was stringing green beans for dinner. As a bean would fall they would grab it, chew it up, then spit it at her. But she didn't pay any attention, just went on with her work, for they had to try to avoid trouble with them at all costs.

When spring came, the Gibson family continued their journey to Salt Lake City, and arrived in the valley July 29, 1847, four days after the first pioneer train.

Manomas remembers as a child the coming of the crickets, and, like all pioneer children, she tried with her wooden mallet to kill the crickets. And how the gulls came and destroyed the crickets.

The family moved to Big Cottonwood, in the spring of 1848.

Manomas was baptized into the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in Big Cottonwood Creek, in 1850, when she was eight years of age.

Manomas never had the advantage of schooling, always having to remain home and take care of her invalid mother and attend to the house work.

When she was 15 years old, her Father brought home another wife who was just a few months her junior.. The Gibson children resented her intrusion, and she (the new wife) in turn caused considerable trouble between the children and their father.

Because of this, Manomas left home and found employment in Salt Lake City, where she did the house work, helped with the cooking and the washing for three families.

She also worked for Zina Young in the Bee Hive House.

Manomas later came with her father to Dixie. They settled at Duncan's Retreat.

She later moved to St. George and lived with her sister, Laura Altha Gibson who was married to James Andrus. After living with them for sometime, James asked Manomas to become his plural wife.

After her experience with polygamy in her father's home, she was very bitter against it. Previous to this time she had said, "If any man asked her to become a plural wife, she would spit in his face.

But she and her sister Laura got along very well, and she always said, "James never showed any partiality. If he bought a spool of thread for one, he did for the other, too."

They were married in the Endowment House in Salt Lake City.

After her marriage, they came back to Dixie and lived at Grafton, where James was running his cattle and horses. Here they lived for one year. But the Indians were giving the settlers trouble, so the people of these small settlements were asked to move closer together. So the two wives, Laura and Manomas, with others, moved to Rockville.

At this time, 1866, James had been called to be a Captain in the Militia, in the Black Hawk War. These men were called to protect the settlers from the marauding Indians, and in doing so he was away from home much of the time. When the people were asked to move from Grafton to Rockville for protection, James had gone to Salt Lake for ammunition.

The day scheduled for moving, a light drizzle of rain fell throughout the day, and upon arriving in Rockville, the house they had planned on moving into was occupied, and the only other place available was a nice barn that belonged to the Bennetts. We cleaned it out and called that our home.

At this time, Manoma's two small children were born while she was undergoing these hardships, and her first five children died while they were very small.

In 1872, James was called to manage the Canaan Cooperative Stock Company at the Canaan Ranch. She spent eleven years of her life working hard from early morning until late at night. During her first few years there, she lived in a wagon box and did her cooking outside.

At this time, James received a call from Pres. Erastus Snow to start out with as many men as possible after some marauding Indians.

At the time he was called, she was left alone at the ranch with a young boy sixteen years old, and her only child that had survived, Moses Willard, who was eighteen months old. Just at sundown, eighty Navajo's came riding up to the ranch, bareback, all in their war paint, and camped down in a clump of trees close to her wagon box. Was she frightened? The only thing she could do was to kill them a beef, so she and this young boy proceeded to do so before it became too dark to see. They gave the Indians the beef and a sack of flour, and during the night the Indians cooked the beef and made bread out of the flour. She didn't sleep that night or undress herself or her child, shaking for fear that they would be killed. Her prayers were prayed often.

Next morning as she was straining the milk she looked up and found her child gone. She frantically searched for him and found him sitting in the middle of the camp where the Indians were. She walked out, picked up the baby and brought him back to the wagon. The Indians went away without harming them. Later on, the rock house was finished, and at that time she cooked for a large group of men, and skimmed thirty pans of milk a day. With this she made butter, and this was sent to St. George to the stockholders of the company.

After this time, she lived at Pipe Springs for one year. Then they moved to St. George, where she lived for the rest of her life, except for two years which she spent in Oxford, Idaho, 1887 - 1889, where her youngest child was born.

She was an active Relief Society worker, and she served in the Primary Presidency. For many years she was a member of the Old Folks Committee.

James died in 1914, and about 1922 she lost her eye sight. After that, she spent much time at the temple doing temple work. She did 2, 000 endowments after she lost her sight.

She was the mother of thirteen children, six of which died in infancy. She had five living children at her death. She died May 31, 1940, at St. George, Utah, being 98 years old at that time.

Number each source on front side of family group sheet--use primary original sources where possible. Then refer to these references by number, page, etc. Example: Ref. #1, p. 23, extract #3; Ref. #4, p. 125, notebook R2, p. 13.
